

Desire, Time, and Effort

If you want to accomplish something, you will need to use desire, time, and effort. You can hope that you will suddenly get taller, or smarter, or better-looking, or that someone will come along and give you a lot of money—but don't hold your breath. If you want something, you are probably going to have to work for it. The more desire, time, and effort you are willing to put into something, the more likely you are to get it.

If you focus your desire, time, and effort on positive things—things that don't hurt yourself or others, or get you into trouble—you will start to accomplish more of what you want.

Introductory Activity